

Jeremy Stelter is the Director of Business Development, Western U.S., for The Stelter Company, a leading source for gift planning marketing for the nonprofit community. The Stelter Company, which was founded more than 50 years ago, serves nearly 2,000 organizations nationally with a staff of 107. The home office is located in Des Moines, Iowa, with regional marketing consultants serving these regions: Midwest, Great Lakes, New England, East, Southeast, South and West.

For more than ten years, Jeremy's primary responsibility has been to manage the western United States by making face-to-face visits with clients and prospects within a nine-state territory. Jeremy personally works with more than 300 clients concerning their marketing needs.

Jeremy's expertise places him avidly speaking at industry meetings or social networking online regarding gift planning hot topics such as marketing on multimedia platforms, relationship building strategies, and cutting-edge donor and fundraising research.

Jeremy is a member of the Colorado Planned Giving Roundtable and currently serves on the marketing committee.

Jeremy is a graduate of the University of Iowa with a degree in Marketing. He was also the football team's mascot, Herky the Hawk. He is the son of Larry Stelter, who created the Planned Giving Division of the company, and one of two, third-generation Stelters currently working with the company. He is a dedicated runner, golfer, guitar player, trout fisherman and general "out-of-doors" kind of guy. Jeremy, his wife, Michelle, and children Sam and Lucy reside in Denver.