

Jeri Alcock, Partner & Senior Consultant, Rose City Philanthropy

Jeri Alcock is the Founder and Senior Consultant for Rose City Philanthropy. Jeri has worked in the nonprofit sector for twenty years as a fundraising professional and consultant and earned her Certified Fundraising Executive credential in 2008 when she became a full-time consultant.

Jeri has provided grantee training for national and regional foundations such as NOAA, Meyer Memorial Trust and Oregon Community Foundation. She has consulted to statewide coalitions and organizations across the Pacific Northwest and Northern California to achieve their fundraising goals.

Jeri completed her undergraduate degree at Pacific University and earned her master's degree in social work from Portland State University. In 2006, Willamette Valley Development Officers, the Portland Metro Area's professional association for fundraisers, named Jeri Outstanding Development Officer. She currently serves as a board member for the Oregon Chapter of the Association of Fundraising Professionals where she chairs the Membership Committee.

Jeri is passionate about helping great causes to find their greatest champions and her favorite projects involve working with teams to achieve audacious goals through results-oriented teamwork. Jeri resides in Beaverton, Oregon, but her favorite place is on her paddleboard anywhere in the sun.
